How to Be Productive Working at Home: 101 Productivity Hacks

Working at home, or telecommuting, calls for more self-discipline. Unlike working in an office where the course for the day is already set out for you, working from home has some unique distractions. Sometimes, the weathers calling you to go outside, or your kids are asking for more playtime. Perhaps your friend calls and wants to head out shopping. These interruptions, I think, are the prime challenges for anyone who works from home. The phrase, home is the most comfortable place to work, does not always apply. We may think in terms of no screaming boss, no dress code, and no short breaks; however, there is more to working at home and being productive. The truth is there are a multitude of distractions inside the house. However, as a freelancer, you cannot allow any distractions cause you to miss deadlines or have irate clients.
