Jesus, the Son of Man was first published in 1928. The book is a collection of nearly 100 poetic essays on faith and the lives of Jesus and other key biblical people. Much of Gibran's writings deal with Christianity, especially on the topic of spiritual love. But his mysticism is a convergence of several different influences: Christianity, Islam, Sufism, Hinduism and theosophy. Gibran met 'Abdul-Baha, the leader of the Bahai Faith at the time of his visit to the United States. Gibran is said to have thought of 'Abdul-Baha throughout the writing of this book. His poetry is notable for its use of formal language, as well as insights on topics of life using spiritual terms. Gibran's best-known work is The Prophet, a book composed of twenty-six poetic essays. The book became especially popular during the 1960s with the American counterculture and New Age movements.
